Dad, I miss you terribly. You were always there when I needed you. Whenever I needed guidance on anything you always had an answer for me or my kids. I am so glad we got to spend last summer together in your house. Even though at the time we were driving each other crazy, it turned out to be a blessing. Your great granddaughter, Cosette, really got to know her Poppa. She adored you and wonders were you are. I'm happy that you got to see me get my master's and my kids graduate from school, and college. Jonathan will make you proud the day he graduates from medical school and maybe he will be the one to find a cure for cancer. Dad, I think about you daily and hope I lived up to your expectations.

I remember when I first met Harvey. It was at the Astor hotel in nyc at a dance. This was how we would meet nice guys. And we danced and danced. Harvey was a great dancer. He invited me to sit down and have a drink. I had a coke. He took out a pack of Kent King. That was what I smoked. So we sat there smoking and drinking our soda. He was so easy to talk to, soft spoken and had a great sense of humor. We started dating , took me to see my first opera madambutterfly. Over the years we saw many operas, Carmen being my favorite. We went to Roosevelt raceway where I learned about betting on the horses. He was a excellent tennis player, swimmer skier bowler racquet ball player I only beat him once in that. Harvey was a wonderful caring loving husband and father to his daughter and three sons. He always found time to play catch with his sons and tennis with his daughter. He loved to travel. Japan Vietnam Cambodia Thailand and most of the Caribbean islands canadA. He loved his six grandchildren and his greatdaughter. When he found out I had cancer also we both cried when we got home. We went together for our chemo treatments and watched one another fall asleep. We had our youngest son. Jason drive us for our treatments thank you jay for all your help. Paw and I are so proud of you and the man you are today. I want my children to remember the good times we had as a family and what a wonderful husband and father Harvey was. Love you Harvey I will miss you so much. You gave me a happy and loving life and turned me into the princess I am today
