David Esposito lit a candle in honor of Farrel.

I have many memories of feral over the past 41 years that I have known him. I met Farrel in 1985 and for the majority of my career as a contractor my only electrician was what's new electric because he was fair and honest with me with all our dealings which was very important to me.. we spent many hours sitting at laspada's restaurant eating and sharing sub sandwiches together when you would speak about his family, his friends, the trips he loved to take. so I got to know him not only in business but as a person and on a personal level. throughout the years I had the privilege of meeting his wife, his son, his daughter and could tell by the way he spoke how close and fond he was of all of them. he was a well-rounded person and someone that I am happy to have done business with and took all my friend. ❤️ ~David S Esposito

A great "kid" from Francis Lewis High School, Queens, New York, class of 1964. May he rest in peace.

Farrel was DEFINITELY all about the laughter. I'll never forget how he and Carol opened their home to me when my parents went on a business road trip. And he played at least a 50% role in the development of one of my best friends in this life. May his memory be a blessing.

Dear Carol, Sean, Danielle, Rusty, and the entire Greenberg family, I was deeply saddened to hear of Farrel's passing. The Greenbergs were like a second family to me growing up, and Farrel was very much like a second father. I spent so much of my high school years at the Greenberg home, and some of my fondest memories were made there. As one of Sean's closest friends, I was welcomed into your warm, often hilarious, and loving household — as an Italian-Spanish Catholic kid, getting an education in the life and celebrations of a Jewish family is something I will always appreciate and cherish. The Greenbergs were also a huge part of our own family celebrations, Farrel was always amongst those who were the life of the party. Farrel and Carol were endlessly generous, relaxed, and welcoming to those entering their home — and that extended to their kids' friends. They also permitted both their children, Sean and Danielle, to have multiple friends over for sleepovers, which made them especially fun and memorable. I always greatly appreciated them for hospitality and the wonderfully fun environment they permitted me to be a part of. Farrel always made me feel at home. He joked with me as if I were one of his own, which meant he sometimes picked on me — always in good fun though — and he filled every room he entered with his quick wit and charm. It's easy to see where Sean gets a good deal of his sense of humor — heck, you are all funny Greenbergs and Farrel's spirit lives on through all of you in this way and many others. He will be greatly missed. Please know that you are all in my thoughts, and Wendy, Ginevra, and the entire Tornabene family are sending you our love and strength during this time of loss. Carol and families We are truly saddened to hear this news. May Farrel's decent, good, and happy spirit be your source of comfort and memory in the days ahead. As a neighbor who "lighted up" when Mr. Sparky engaged in his humor. Again. Our sincere condolences to you. Margo and Arthur Green
